Awesome resource

By Trisha Smith

We decided to homeschool this year and this is one of the first items I picked up to have on hand for the boys to use when doing their Science. I love how much information is included, and the pictures and eye appeal are great. This is a great resource and has plenty of additional information to help your kids supplement their research or learn from. It is getting a lot of use already, though we just started the year. I highly recommend picking this up, whether homeschooling or teaching. It is a great resource with amazing visual information.

Concise No Math and Illustrative

By Suresh Chanmugam

I am an engineer and a volunteer tutor in science and mathematics for grade 8-9 students. This is one of the best books covering the essential scientific concepts in non mathematical form that I have used which also makes it great book to supplement mathematically oriented physical science text even at the first year college level. It covers Physics (as Force, Motion, Energy, Light and Electricity) Chemistry, Biology and the Natural sciences. It's short on human biology, but one must grasp the essence of animal biology which is common first. Each section is well organized by topic with a concise paragraph supported by plenty of colored illustration. Furthermore it has some simple examples of where the concept is used in real life or a supporting experiment that one can perform at home. Well done DK. This is an encyclopedia geared for young adolescents or any one with a curious mind. Therefore it requires some guidance in selecting topics, however it is sufficiently well organized that one you can pick a section i.e. earth science and follow page after page.
